

CHAPTER V

CONCLUSION AND SUGGESTION

A. CONCLUSION

Based on the results of research and discussion in the previous chapter IV, it can be concluded as follows:

1. Students' intrinsic motivation towards online learning are things that drive students to participate in online learning that arise from within students, these things are the hope to better understand what is being learned, the need to get better knowledge, and there is an interest to study online.
2. Students' extrinsic motivation towards online learning are things that drive students to participate in online learning that arise from outside of students, these things are the family encouragement to be more enthusiastic about learning through online learning, an environment that drive students to participate in online learning, and the existence of rewards that encourage students to take in online learning.

B. SUGGESTION

Based on the conclusions obtained, the suggestions that could be given are as follows:

1. For students, to maintain it and increase motivation in learning through online learning so that students' enthusiasm for learning increases.
2. For other research, to conduct this study in quantitative method with more students from various departments.
