The objective of this research is to determine the implementation of the Direct Cash Assistance (BLT) program due to COVID-19 in Tete A Village, Ampana Tete Sub-District, Tojo Una-una Regency and the factors that influence it. The sample in this research is 11 people. This research uses descriptive qualitative methods and data is collected from interviews, documentation, and observation. The results show that the implementation of the policy of the Direct Cash Assistance (BLT) program in Tete A Village, Tete Sub-District, Tojo Una-Una Regency regarding community coverage in obtaining services had mostly been achieved, but it was necessary to increase human resources with driving factors in terms of political leadership commitment and ability. The organization has helped ease the burden on the community in the scope of work operations, especially in delivering programs to the community. The inhibiting factor in terms of the number of players (actors) involved will lead to overlapping policies that will confuse especially regulatory issues for which accountability is not yet clear.
