

CHAPTER V

CONCLUSION AND SUGGESTION

This chapter affords about conclusion and suggestion primarily based on researcher's discussion. This conclusion gives approximately factors the students' difficulties in pronouncing Labiodental sounds. Then, the suggestion is about researcher's advice for English students and other.

A. Conclusion

Based at the end result focusing finding problems, the students have factors problem in pronouncing Labiodental sounds. primarily based on facts discussion, the researcher determined factors that experienced by way of the students, they may be; students have less of students knowledge approximately English sound system, and environment. In Bahasa sound (a = a), in English sound (a= ei), so that they've problems each English sound system, generally the students who readingless pronunciation so that the students have hard after they speaking or studying with new English phrases, and the students have difficulties on their environment when they could increased their English due to the fact there may be no to speak English every other.

B. Suggestion

Based on the Finding and Discussion, the researcher wants to give some suggestion for English pronunciation students and other researchers. They are as follows :

1. For students

Hopefully the students should solve their problem. For example, the students who have problem about pronunciation, they should increase their pronunciation because it important in learning English. The point is the students should practice more and they read and memorize vocabulary that have Labiodental words frequently.

2. For other researchers

For next researcher who wants to conduct a research about English pronunciation Labiodental sounds, hopefully this research can be used for reference. Because there are several limitation in this research as like the time for investigating data is too limited. The researcher also suggests the further researcher to investigate pronunciation related Labiodental sounds.

